KINDERGARTEN VISIT TO CAMDEN ENVIRONMENTAL EDUCATION CENTRE

Kindergarten students recently enjoyed a wonderful day at the Camden Environmental Education Centre as part of their Science learning.

Students collected fresh eggs from the chook pen, observed sheep mustering and wool inspection, compared cattle and crops during a wagon ride, and learnt how farm products can be transformed into everyday foods through a variety of practical experiences. Students also participated in an Indigenous relay game, working together to safely transport a pretend emu egg using a stick, developing teamwork and problem-solving skills while learning about Indigenous perspectives.

The excursion was a wonderful extension of our classroom learning and gave students the opportunity to develop a deeper understanding of the natural world through meaningful, real-world experiences.
